Weekly Wave

THIS WEEK IN KINDERGARTEN:

January 14, 2011

Letter of the Week: Qq

We learned about and practiced writing the letter Qq. We talked about the sound Qq makes and how we have to listen really hard to make sure it's not a Cc or Kk. We also learned that Qq does not write any word without it's best friend, Uu.

In Math:

We completed our chapter on measurement and we are pros! Now we're learning more about the numbers 10-20 and how the 1 in the tens place means there's 10 and the next number is how many extra. Ex: 14 means 10 with 4 extra.

We're Working on Our Math Vocabulary:

- Writing numbers 10-20

Sight Words: are/ in

We reviewed our sight words "are" and "in." We practiced chanting them and recognizing them when they were spelled. We practiced writing them and using them in sentences.

Notes/Reminders:

ANY VOLUNTEERS???

We will be celebrate Kansas' 150th birthday on Jan. 28th. This will include stations the help the kids learn more about Kansas. We need parent volunteers to help us out on Jan 28 8:15-11:00. Please let me know if you can help us!

Independent Kiddos

Please have your child work on tying, zipping, buttoning, etc. Remember that Kindergarten teachers will no longer be doing this for your child. They will be responsible for doing it themselves or finding a friend to help. We are really working on independence these next few months. Thank you!

WE ARE WONDERFUL WRITERS!!

I hope you read the story that came home on Wednesday. That story was written entirely by the kids!! We voted on what to title the story and then went from there. These kiddos are impressing me more and more every day. We also worked on another writing activity yesterday where the kids wrote their sentences on their own, using resources and best guess spelling to figure it out. This activity will be on display outside our classroom next week. The writing will be up on the website next week!
